How to Trace Your Native American Ancestry

Many of us have heard stories that we have Native American ancestors or kin and would like to learn how to research the issue. Many Native Americans may wish to learn how to prove their tribal affiliations.

Join us for a viewing of an informative DVD on the subject with discussion to follow. If you are researching in this area, please come and share your experiences.

The public is welcome to attend.

Looking for software for a Mac?

Here are some to check out. Just click on the blue link to go to the site for more info.

Remember to view any of these blue links, hold down the control key and then click on the enter (return) key.

GEDitCOM

GEDitCOM is a customizable genealogy application for the Macintosh (and MacOS X) for editing and viewing GEDCOM genealogy files

Gene

Gene Macintosh Genealogy Software is an inexpensive shareware program that allows you to store family data and notes, draw and print family trees and charts, create genealogy web pages and exchange GEDCOM files.

GenScribe

A family history research tracking and record keeping program, designed to help Macintosh users plan and manage genealogy research.

Heredis Mac X

Originally a French genealogy software program, Heredis now comes in an English version for the Mac. Includes iApps integration and runs on the Mac OS X operating system. Outstanding charts!

Mac Family Tree

This Mac-only family tree shareware program offers versions in a variety of different languages. This program runs on Mac OS X.

Personal Ancestral File

This program from the LDS Church is easy to use, will run on just about any computer and is available for only $10.00US. This Macintosh version 2.3.1 is fairly outdated however, as the latest release was March 1996.

Reunion

This family tree software has long been rated the best genealogy product available for the Macintosh. Download a free demo version and try it for yourself.

Sparrowhawk

A GEDCOM-to-HTML conversion program for the Macintosh.

Mac Genealogy Software Reviews

Here you can read reviews of several of the most popular Macintosh family tree software programs. You can also find overviews and details of just about every genealogy software application and tool designed for the Mac.

Jabber from Janice

My topic today is Membership. In the January/March 2008 issue of NGS Newsmagazine (National Genealogical Society), Gary M. Smith and Diana Crisman Smith wrote an article entitled Membership has its benefits: Joining a Genealogical Society. The article hit home with me on the subject of “research-area” societies. These are societies that are in areas of interest but might be thousands of miles from your hometown. You might never get the chance to attend a program or browse the library. “Why join?”, you may ask.

I have now sitting before me, renewals for membership in the Genealogical Society of Douglas County (Oregon) <http://www.rootsweb.ancestry.com/~orgsdc/> and Harrison-Rockingham Historical Society (Virginia) <http://www.heritagecenter.com/>. I have belonged for quite some time to these and several other societies. I get very excited when a newsletter is in my mailbox or even better a quarterly like the Carroll County Historical and Genealogical Society (Arkansas) <http://www.rootsweb.ancestry.com/~arcchs/index.html> (this is an amazing website for such a small area in the Ozarks). I have found unbelievable gems about my families in these publications and have had the good fortune to have discovered helpful researchers in these areas. You can post queries (like our Brick wall column), request research assistance, and feel a little closer to an area where your ancestor lived. Society members have even gone so far as to photograph gravestones or former residences of an ancestor for one of their faraway members.

Also consider joining regional, state or topic specific organizations. Some examples: New England Historic Genealogical Society: www.newenglandancestors.org; Palatines to America: www.palam.org; Afro-American Historical and Genealogical Society: www.aahgs.org; Federation of East European Family History Societies: www.feefhs.org.

Or even a “One Name Study” which does research and maintains a central repository of specific information on that one surname. Check out the ever popular Cyndi’s List Surname site for some direction to Surname lists: <http://www.cyndislist.com/surn-gen.htm>. After doing the Y-DNA test on my brother and my husband, I joined two: Brown and Cox. I thought the Brown name would be difficult but I have already hooked up with some “Internet Cousins” who have been a great resource.

Also there are organizations that help in developing and/or promoting an area of expertise. The Genealogical Speaker Guild helps spread the word that you are ready and able to speak to an audience of eager genealogists: www.genealogicalspeakersguild.org. The International Society of Family History Writers and Editors is the organization to look into for promoting and improving your skills: <http://www.rootsweb.ancestry.com/~cgc/>.

Of course, do not forget the NGS. They have the most informative and professional articles that I have read: <http://www.ngsgenealogy.org/>.

Happy Surfing,
Janice

ID NUMBERS OF COLLATERALS

From: AHNENTAFELS AND COLLATERALS by the Numbers, by William Dollarhide
Free Genealogical Pointers Newsletter found on www.genealogical.com
(Genealogy Pointers, 1-15-08)

In the Genealogy Pointers article, "An Awful Ahnentafel" (Genealogy Pointers, 12-04-07), Mr. Dollarhide explains the very useful German numbering system for a pedigree. The ID numbers (or ahnentafel numbers) that allow a genealogist to have unique numbers, which can be used as controlling devices and for organizing a pedigree in different ways--for making lists of ancestors, surnames, or even families. See that article at "An Awful Ahnentafel" by William Dollarhide at (Genealogy Pointers, 12-04-07) http://www.genealogical.com/content/pointers_archive.html (This is a terrific site to check out...and they have great genealogy books for sale...ed.) Here he discusses the very logical numbering system and how to use it.

If you need to branch out to the collateral siblings of your ancestors, then an ID number for these extra people will be useful.

Your ancestor's brothers and sisters, along with their descendants, are collateral to the pedigree. There is a method for giving all of these related persons ID numbers as well.

But first, let's modify the ahnentafel numbering rules slightly. What if we assigned ID numbers to all our ancestors with a number that adds a decimal and a zero, such as:

1 = 1.0
2 = 2.0
3 = 3.0
4 = 4.0
5 = 5.0
and so on

An ID number adding the "point zero" will be reserved for indicating a direct ancestor.

Now you can give ID numbers to the brothers and sisters of 1.0 as 1.1, 1.2, 1.3, or to the brothers and sisters of 2.0 as 2.1, 2.2, 2.3, and so on.

If you prepare a family group sheet for your ancestors 12 and 13 (now to be shown as 12.0 and 13.0), their children could be numbered 6.1, 6.2, 6.3, and so on. The decimal order can indicate an approximate birth order for all siblings except for the sibling who is your ancestor.

Since we are reserving ID 6.0 for ancestor number six (6 and 6.0 are identical), it becomes a flag that indicates which of the siblings is the direct ancestor. Remember, however, the birth order for the ancestor needs to be determined by his/her position on a family group listing.

Let's say ancestors 12.0 and 13.0 had four children, and your ancestor was the fourth child. That child would be ID number 6.0 who is one-half the number of his father 12.0. Why must the child be 6.0? You will recall from the previous article the rule of doubling a male ancestor's number in order to identify his father. Now we are going in the other direction--we are trying to locate the son--so we divide in half any father's ID number to find the ID number of "pedigree child," for example:

- 12.0 Father
- 13.0 Mother
- 6.1 child 1 (male or female)
- 6.2 child 2 (male or female)
- 6.3 child 3 (male or female)
- 6.0 child 4 (your ancestor, a male)

What if 12.0 and 13.0 had four children and your ancestor was the second child in the family:

- 12.0 Father
- 13.0 Mother
- 6.1 child 1 (male or female)
- 6.0 child 2 (your ancestor, a male)
- 6.3 child 3 (male or female)
- 6.4 child 4 (male or female)

In the example above, your ancestor retains the number 6.0 regardless of his position in the birth order of siblings. There is no 6.2 because 6.0 takes that position as the second child.

On some family sheets the order of children must be approximated when we don't know their precise birth dates or birth order. In some cases, genealogists list the children in the only way possible--by guessing. If exact dates of birth are not known, the same would be true for assigning ID numbers to the siblings of an ancestor. But, once the numbers are assigned, you should not change them, because we can use the collateral ID numbers to identify the descendants of siblings as well.

 Napa Sentinel, The Odd Body column by Stephen Juan.
 Danish researchers have established that all people with blue eyes have a single common ancestor. A team of researchers headed by Associate Professor Hans Eiberg of the Department of Cellular and Molecular Medicine at the University of Copenhagen tracked down a genetic mutation which took place six to ten thousand years ago and is the cause of the eye color of all blue-eyed humans alive today.

Volunteer Opportunities ABOUND

- ◆ Staffing opportunity at the Library. 10 am-1 pm shift or 1 pm-4 pm shift once a month. Meet new people and learn about your library. Training provided. Call (252-8089) or e-mail (cpatrose@comcast.net) Christine Patterson.
- ◆ Volunteer your expertise in an area of your choice to help with questions or e-mail. Leave an e-mail for the Staff at nvgbs@napanet.net.
- ◆ Help out at the Library with shelving or special projects. Call the Library (252-2252) on Tuesdays mornings to hear what is available. Ask for Sandra Hoover.

Your Expertise is Requested and Appreciated!

If you would be willing to help a member in your particular area of interest, please let us know.

- ◆ Are you good at deciphering old handwriting?
- ◆ Did you thoroughly research Colusa County, California or Lancaster Co., Pennsylvania?
- ◆ Did you explore an internet archive site that would help someone else?
- ◆ Do you do a surname or family newsletter?
- ◆ Are you quite familiar with a research facility?
- ◆ Can you translate a German document?
- ◆ Have you explored and used many features of a genealogy software program?

Someone in our membership could use your help. Please give us a call or e-mail us (see front page) and we will get a list going in our newsletter so everyone may benefit from our knowledge base.
